TIPS for Teleworking and Staying Calm During Difficult and Changing Times

For the vast majority of us, sudden changes in our day-to-day routines and environment cause increased stress levels as our nervous systems activate a survival response. While this is normal, it can be uncomfortable and unhealthy. You might feel isolated, overwhelmed with urgent demands on your time and attention, or be juggling multiple personal and professional issues. This can also exacerbate behavioral health concerns such as anxiety, depression, substance use, and addiction issues. On a basic level, we have experienced drastic changes in our routines, environments, and modes of communication. On a deeper level, we might be directly or indirectly impacted by physical illness or financial difficulties.

Below are survival tips for building resiliency while adjusting to change at home and in the workplace \(virtual or otherwise\). For suggestions on implementing the tips below, a confidential consultation and discussion about your stressors, more helpful resources, or to schedule a free well-being webinar for a legal workplace or organization (ethics CLE credit), contact your Colorado Lawyer Assistance Program: 303-986-3345 or info@coloradolap.org. All calls and emails are confidential For more info: www.coloradolap.org

Be patient & supportive of others, and don't neglect your own self-care: since stress is contagious, managing your own stress levels in healthy ways encourages the people around you to do the same (your children, partner/spouse, family, colleagues, employees, and clients).	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) http://coloradosupremecourt.com/Newsletters/March2020/COLAP%20Resilient%20Legal%20Organizations.htm; 2) https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/daily-life-coping/managing-stress-anxiety.html; 3) https://www.ptsd.va.gov/covid/COVID_managing_stress.asp
Breathe deeply, laugh, keep up your sense of humor & smile more: all improve your cognitive, mental, emotional, and physical health; research shows they are also powerful de-stressors used by individuals who exhibit resilience, grit, and stress hardiness during difficult or challenging times.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) https://www.cobar.org/Portals/COBAR/TCL/2020/February/Feb_Series.pdf; 2) https://www.health.harvard.edu/mind-and-mood/relaxation-techniques-breath-control-helps-quell-errant-stress-response
Create a comfortable workspace: keep your monitor(s) at eye level, get an ergonomic chair, use noise reducing headphones, etc.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) https://blog.trello.com/remote-office-tours-a-look-into-10-home-setups-of-remote-workers; 2) https://www.mayoclinic.org/healthy-lifestyle/adult-health/in-depth/office-ergonomics/art-20046169

Create a daily routine & stick to it: Create a schedule with regular breaks, social time (call loved ones or colleagues to check-in), exercise time, and downtime (recreational reading/TV/gaming).	https://www.themuse.com/advice/coronavirus-work-from-home-tips
Create an “end of day” routine: our work is never done, but we compromise our ability to relax, sleep, and regenerate when we work late into the evening. At the end of the day: de-clutter your workspace and write your to-list for the next day. This will help you “put it down” and “let it go.”	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) https://www.inc.com/lolly-daskal/how-to-cure-your-workaholic-addiction.html; 2) https://doist.com/blog/end-work-day/
